4. Service Interruption

4.1 Evergrande Securities (Hong Kong) and Evergrande Futures (Hong Kong) may suspend any service provided to Client under ETS without notice where Evergrande Securities (Hong Kong) and Evergrande Futures (Hong Kong) consider it necessary or advisable to do so, for example, when there is a suspected breach of security or other reasons.

4.2 Where Evergrande Securities (Hong Kong) and Evergrande Futures (Hong Kong) consider it necessary, it may from time to time to suspend some or all of ETS for routine, non-routine or emergency maintenance. In the event of such a suspension being necessary, Evergrande Securities (Hong Kong) and Evergrande Futures (Hong Kong) will try its best endeavour to provide Client with a reasonable period of notice prior to the suspension.

4.3 Evergrande Securities (Hong Kong) and Evergrande Futures (Hong Kong) reserve absolute rights to nullify and/or void trades executed or transacted under significant deviation from the market price including but not limited to erroneous price information through data feed and any form of deviation such as machine breakdown, hacking, network disconnection, technical and/or human error etc. Evergrande Securities (Hong Kong) and Evergrande Futures (Hong Kong) reserve absolute and final decisions on the matter.

Section 4 - Risk Disclosure Statements and Disclaimers

A. Risk Disclosure Statements for Cash and Margin Account

1. Risk of Securities Trading

The prices of securities fluctuate, sometimes dramatically. The price of a security may move up or down, and may become valueless. It is as likely that losses will be incurred rather than profit made as a result of buying and selling securities.

2. Risk of Trading Renminbi Securities or Making Renminbi Investments

2.1 Currency Risk

Non-mainland Client who holds a local currency other than Renminbi will be exposed to currency risk if the Client invests in Renminbi products, as Renminbi is a restricted currency and subject to exchange controls. The Client may have to convert the local currency into Renminbi when investing in Renminbi products; however, there may at any given time be limited availability of Renminbi outside Mainland China. When the Client redeems/sells investment, the Client may also need to convert the Renminbi received upon redemption/sale of investment product into local currency during which the Client may incur currency conversion costs and be exposed to currency risk. Like other currencies, the exchange rate of Renminbi may rise or fall and Renminbi is subject to conversion restrictions and foreign exchange control mechanism.

2.2 Secondary Market for Renminbi Products

There may not be any secondary market for Renminbi products. The Client should check with investment adviser or seek professional advice on the availability of secondary market for the Renminbi product the Client plans to invest and its liquidity. The Client should also find out whether the Renminbi product is subject to any lock-up period or heavy penalty or charges for early surrender or termination of product. The Client should consider carefully liquidity needs before committing to any investment.

2.3 Investment/Market Risk

Like all other investments, Renminbi products are subject to investment risk and may not be principal protected, i.e. the assets that the products invest in or referenced to may fall as well as rise, resulting in gains or losses to the product. The Client may suffer a loss even if Renminbi appreciates.

2.4 Liquidity Risk

Renminbi products are subject to liquidity risk as there may not be regular trading or an active secondary market. Therefore the Client may not be able to sell investment in the product on a timely basis, or the Client may have to sell the product at a deep discount to its value.

2.5 Issuer/Counterparty Risk

Renminbi products are subject to credit and insolvency risks of their issuers. The Client should consider carefully the creditworthiness of the issuers before making investment. Furthermore, as Renminbi product may invest in derivative instruments, counterparty risk may also arise as the default by the derivative issuers may adversely affect the performance of the Renminbi products and result in substantial losses.

3. Risk of Trading Growth Enterprise Market Stocks

3.1 Growth Enterprise Market (GEM) stocks involve a high investment risk. In particular, companies may list on GEM with neither a track record of profitability nor any obligation to forecast future profitability. GEM stocks may be very volatile and illiquid.

3.2 The Client should make the decision to invest only after due and careful consideration. The greater risk profile and other characteristics of GEM mean that it is a market more suited to professional and other sophisticated investors. Current information on GEM stocks may only be found on the internet website operated by the Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited. GEM companies are usually not required to issue paid announcements gazetted newspapers.

3.3 The Client should seek independent professional advice if it is uncertain of or has not understood any aspect of this risk disclosure statement or the nature and risks involved in trading of GEM stocks.

4. Risk of Trading NASDAQ-AMEX Securities at the Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited

The securities under the Nasdaq-Amex Pilot Programme (PP) are aimed at sophisticated investors. The Client should consult its dealer and become familiarized with the PP before trading in the PP securities. The Client should be aware that PP securities are not regulated as a primary or secondary listing on the Main Board or the Growth Enterprise Market of the Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited.

5. Risks of Client Assets Received or Held Outside Hong Kong

Client assets received or held by Evergrande Securities (Hong Kong) and Evergrande Futures (Hong Kong) outside Hong Kong are subject to the applicable laws and regulations of the relevant jurisdiction which may be different from the Securities and Futures Ordinance (Cap.571) and the rules made thereafter. Consequently, such client assets may not enjoy the same protection as that conferred on client assets received or held in Hong Kong

B. Risk Disclosure Statements for Margin Account

1. Risk of Margin Trading

The risk of loss in financing a transaction by deposit of collateral is significant. The Client may sustain losses in excess of the Client's cash and any other assets deposited as collateral with Evergrande Securities (Hong Kong) and Evergrande Futures (Hong Kong). Market conditions may make it impossible to execute contingent orders, such as "stop-loss" or "stop-limit" orders. The Client may be called upon at short notice to make additional margin deposits or interest payments. If the required margin deposits or interest payments are not made within the prescribed time, the Client's collateral may be liquidated without the Client's consent. Moreover, the Client will remain liable for any resulting deficit in the Client's account and interest charged on the Client's account. The Client should therefore carefully consider whether such a financing arrangement is suitable in light of the Client's own financial position and investment objectives.

2. Risk of Providing an Authority to Repledge the Client's Securities Collateral etc

There is risk if the Client provides Evergrande Securities (Hong Kong) and Evergrande Futures (Hong Kong) with an authority that allows it to apply the Client's securities or securities collateral pursuant to a securities borrowing and lending agreement, repledge the Client's securities collateral for financial accommodation or deposit the Client's securities collateral as collateral for the discharge and satisfaction of its settlement obligations and liabilities.

If the Client's securities or securities collateral are received or held by Evergrande Securities (Hong Kong) and Evergrande Futures (Hong Kong), the above arrangement is allowed only if you consent in writing. Moreover, unless the Client is a professional investor, the Client's authority must specify the period for which it is current and be limited to not more than 12 months. If the Client is a professional investor, these restrictions do not apply.

Additionally, the Client's authority may be deemed to be renewed (i.e. without its written consent) if Evergrande Securities (Hong Kong) and Evergrande Futures (Hong Kong) issue the Client a reminder at least 14 days prior to the expiry of the authority, and the Client do not object to such deemed renewal before the expiry date of its then existing authority.

The Client is not required by any law to sign these authorities. But an authority may be required by Evergrande Securities (Hong Kong) and Evergrande Futures (Hong Kong) to facilitate margin lending to the Client or to allow the Client's securities or securities collateral to be lent to or deposited as collateral with third parties. Evergrande Securities (Hong Kong) and Evergrande Futures (Hong Kong) shall explain to the Client the purposes for which one of these authorities is to be used.

If the Client sign one of these authorities and the Client's securities or securities collateral are lent to or deposited with third parties, those third parties will have a lien or charge on the Client's securities or securities collateral. Although Evergrande Securities (Hong Kong) and Evergrande Futures (Hong Kong) are responsible to the Client for securities or securities collateral lent or deposited under the Client's authority, a default by it could result in the loss of your securities or securities collateral.

A cash account not involving securities borrowing and lending is available from most dealers. If the Client do not require margin facilities or do not wish its securities or securities collateral to be lent or pledged, do not sign the above authorities and ask to open this type of cash account only.

C. Risks in Relation to Transaction in Structured and Derivative Products

The following paragraphs are intended as a general guide to highlight some basic risks associated with trading in structured or derivative products and shall not mean to cover all risks and other significant aspects. You should undertake such transactions only if you understand the nature and risks of the structured or derivative products into which the transaction(s) is/are entered into. Trading in structured or derivative products is not suitable to all investors. You should carefully consider whether relevant trading is appropriate taking into account your experience, objectives, financial resources and other relevant circumstances.

1. General Risk Associated with Structured Products

1.1 Issuer default risk

In the event that a structured product issuer becomes insolvent and defaults on their listed securities, investors will be considered as unsecured creditors and will have no preferential claims to any assets held by the issuer. Investors should therefore pay close attention to the financial strength and credit worthiness of structured product issuers.

Note: "Issuers Credit Rating" showing the credit ratings of individual issuers is now available under the Issuer and Liquidity Provider Information sub-section under Derivative Warrants and under CBBCs section on the HKEx corporate website.

1.2 Uncollateralised product risk

Uncollateralised structured products are not asset backed. In the event of issuer bankruptcy, investors can lose their entire investment. Investors should read the listing documents to determine if a product is uncollateralised.

1.3 Gearing risk

Structured products such as derivative warrants and callable bull/bear contracts (CBBCs) are leveraged and can change in value rapidly according to the gearing ratio relative to the underlying assets. Investors should be aware that the value of a structured product may fall to zero resulting in a total loss of the initial investment.

1.4 Expiry considerations

Structured products have an expiry date after which the issue may become worthless. Investors should be aware of the expiry time horizon and choose a product with an appropriate lifespan for their trading strategy.

1.5 Extraordinary price movements

The price of a structured product may not match its theoretical price due to outside influences such as market supply and demand factors. As a result, actual traded prices can be higher or lower than the theoretical price.

1.6 Foreign exchange risk

Investors trading structured products with underlying assets not denominated in Hong Kong dollars are also exposed to exchange rate risk. Currency rate fluctuations can adversely affect the underlying asset value, also affecting the structured product price.

1.7 Liquidity risk

The Exchange requires all structured product issuers to appoint a liquidity provider for each individual issue.

The role of liquidity providers is to provide two way quotes to facilitate trading of their products. In the event that a liquidity provider defaults or ceases to fulfill its role, investors may not be able to buy or sell the product until a new liquidity provider has been assigned.

2. Specific Risk Associated with Derivative Warrants

Derivative warrant trading involves high risks and is not suitable for every investor. Investors should understand and consider the following risks before trading in derivative warrants:

2.1 Limited life

Unlike stocks, derivative warrants have an expiry date and therefore a limited life. Unless the derivative warrants are in-the-money, they become worthless at expiration.

2.2 Time decay

One should be aware that other factors being equal the value of derivative warrants will decrease over time. Therefore, derivative warrants should never be viewed as products that are bought and held as long term investments.

2.3 Volatility

Other factors being equal an increase in the volatility of the underlying asset should lead to a higher warrant price and a decrease in volatility lead to a lower derivative warrant price.

2.4 Market forces

In addition to the basic factors that determine the theoretical price of a derivative warrant, derivative warrant prices are also affected by all other prevailing market forces including the demand for and supply of the derivative warrants. Supply and demand forces may be greatest when a derivative warrant issue is almost sold out and when issuers make further issues of an existing derivative warrant issue.

3. Specific Risk Associated with Callable Bull/Bear Contract

3.1 Mandatory call

CBBC are not suitable for all types of investors and investors should consider their risk appetite prior to trading. In any case, one should not trade in CBBC unless he/she understands the nature of the product and is prepared to lose the total amount invested since a CBBC will be called by the issuer when the price of the underlying asset hits the Call Price and trading in that CBBC will expire early. Payoff for Category N CBBC will be zero when they expire early. When Category R CBBC expire early the holder may receive a small amount of Residual Value payment, but there may be no Residual Value payment in adverse situations. Brokers may charge their clients a service fee for the collection of the Residual Value payment from the respective issuers.

In general, the larger the buffer between the Call Price and the Spot Price of the underlying asset, the lower the probability of the CBBC being called since the underlying asset of that CBBC would have to experience a larger movement in the price before the CBBC will be called. However at the same time, the larger the buffer, the lower the leverage effect will be.

Once the CBBC is called, even though the underlying asset may bounce back in the right direction, the CBBC which has been called will not be revived and investors will not be able to profit from the bounce-back.

Besides, the MCE of a CBBC with overseas assets as underlying may be triggered outside the Exchange's trading hours.

3.2 Limited life

A CBBC has a limited life, as denoted by the fixed expiry date, with a lifespan of 3 months to 5 years. The life of a CBBC may be shorter if called before the fixed expiry date. The price of a CBBC fluctuates with the changes in the price of the underlying asset from time to time and may become worthless after expiry and in certain cases, even before the normal expiry if the CBBC has been called early.

3.3 Movement with underlying asset

Although the price of a CBBC tends to follow closely the price of its underlying asset, but in some situations it may not (i.e. delta may not always be close to one). Prices of CBBC are affected by a number of factors, including its own demand and supply, funding costs and time to expiry. Moreover, the delta for a particular CBBC may not always be close to one, in particular when the price of the underlying asset is close to the Call Price.

3.4 Funding costs

The issue price of a CBBC includes funding costs charged upfront for the entire period from launch to normal expiry. When a CBBC is called, the CBBC holders (investors) will lose the funding cost for the remaining period even though the actual period of funding for the CBBC turns out to be shorter. Investors should also note that the funding costs of a CBBC after launch may vary during its life.

3.5 Trading of CBBC close to Call Price

When the underlying asset is trading close to the Call Price, the price of a CBBC may be more volatile with wider spreads and uncertain liquidity. CBBC may be called at any time and trading will terminate as a result.

However, the trade inputted by the investor may still be executed and confirmed by the investors after the MCE since there may be some time lapse between the MCE time and suspension of the CBBC trading. Any trades executed after the MCE (i.e. Post MCE Trades) will not be recognized and will be cancelled. Therefore, investors should be aware of the risk and ought to apply special caution when the CBBC is trading close to the Call Price.

Issuers will announce the exact call time within 1 hour after the trigger of MCE, and HKEx will also send the list of Post MCE Trades to the relevant Exchange Participants (brokers) who in turn will inform their clients accordingly. For avoidance of doubt on whether their trades have been cancelled (i.e. whether they are Post MCE Trades), the investors may check with their brokers.

3.6 CBBC with overseas underlying assets

Investors trading CBBC with overseas underlying assets are exposed to an exchange rate risk as the price and cash settlement amount of the CBBC are converted from a foreign currency into Hong Kong dollars. Exchange rates between currencies are determined by forces of supply and demand in the foreign exchange markets which are affected by various factors.

Besides, CBBC issued on overseas underlying assets may be called outside the Exchange's trading hours. In such case, the CBBC will be terminated from trading on the Exchange in the next trading session or soon after the issuer has notified the Exchange about the occurrence of the MCE. There will be no automatic suspension of the CBBC by AMS/3. For Category R CBBC, valuation of the residual value will be determined on the valuation day according to the terms in the listing documents.

4. Risks Involved In Trading Derivative Warrants

Derivative warrant trading involves high risks and is not suitable for every investor. Investors should understand and consider the following risks before trading in derivative warrants.

4.1 Gearing Risk

Although derivative warrants may cost a fraction of the price of the underlying assets, a derivative warrant may change in value more or less rapidly than the underlying asset. In the worst case the value of the derivative warrants falls to zero and investors lose their entire purchase price.

4.2 Limited Life

Unlike stocks, derivative warrants have an expiry date and therefore a limited life. Unless the derivative warrants are in-the-money, they become worthless at expiration.

4.3 Time Decay

One should be aware that other factors being equal the value of derivative warrants will decrease over time as they approach their expiry dates. Therefore, derivative warrants should never be viewed as products that are bought and held as long term investments.

4.4 Volatility

Prices of derivative warrants can increase or decrease in line with the implied volatility of underlying asset price. You should be aware of the underlying asset volatility.

4.5 Market Forces

In addition to the basic factors that determine the theoretical price of a derivative warrant, derivative warrant prices are also affected by all other prevailing market forces including the demand for and supply of the derivative warrants. Supply and demand forces may be greatest when a derivative warrant issue is almost sold out and when issuers make further issues of an existing derivative warrant issue.

5. Specific Risk Associated with Exchange Traded Funds (ETFs)

5.1 Market risk

ETFs are typically designed to track the performance of certain indices, market sectors, or groups of assets such as stocks, bonds, or commodities. ETF managers may use different strategies to achieve this goal, but in general they do not have the discretion to take defensive positions in declining markets. Investors must be prepared to bear the risk of loss and volatility associated with the underlying index/assets.

5.2 Tracking errors

Tracking errors refer to the disparity in performance between an ETF and its underlying index/assets. Tracking errors can arise due to factors such as the impact of transaction fees and expenses incurred to the ETF, changes in composition of the underlying index/assets, and the ETF manager's replication strategy. (The common replication strategies include full replication/representative sampling and synthetic replication which are discussed in more detail below.)

5.3 Trading at discount or premium

An ETF may be traded at a discount or premium to its Net Asset Value (NAV). This price discrepancy is caused by supply and demand factors, and may be particularly likely to emerge during periods of high market volatility and uncertainty. This phenomenon may also be observed for ETFs tracking specific markets or sectors that are subject to direct investment restrictions.

5.4 Counterparty risk involved in ETFs with different replication strategies

a. Full replication and representative sampling strategies

An ETF using a full replication strategy generally aims to invest in all constituent stocks/assets in the same weightings as its benchmark. ETFs adopting a representative sampling strategy will invest in some, but not all of the relevant constituent stocks/assets. For ETFs that invest directly in the underlying assets rather than through synthetic instruments issued by third parties, counterparty risk tends to be less of concern.

b. Synthetic replication strategies

ETFs utilising a synthetic replication strategy use swaps or other derivative instruments to gain exposure to a benchmark. Currently, synthetic replication ETFs can be further categorized into two forms:

i. Swap-based ETFs

- Total return swaps allow ETF managers to replicate the benchmark performance of ETFs without purchasing the underlying assets.

- Swap-based ETFs are exposed to counterparty risk of the swap dealers and may suffer losses if such dealers default or fail to honor their contractual commitments.
- II. Derivative embedded ETFs
- ETF managers may also use other derivative instruments to synthetically replicate the economic benefit of the relevant benchmark. The derivative instruments may be issued by one or multiple issuers.
 - Derivative embedded ETFs are subject to counterparty risk of the derivative instruments' issuers and may suffer losses if such issuers default or fail to honour their contractual commitments.

Even where collateral is obtained by an ETF, it is subject to the collateral provider fulfilling its obligations. There is a further risk that when the right against the collateral is exercised, the market value of the collateral could be substantially less than the amount secured resulting in significant loss to the ETF.

6 Specific Risk Associated with Equity Linked Instruments (ELI)

Exposure to equity market - Investors are exposed to price movements in the underlying security and the stock market, the impact of dividends and corporate actions and counterparty risks. Investors must also be prepared to accept the risk of receiving the underlying shares or a payment less than their original investment.

Possibilities of losing investment - Investors may lose part or all of their investment if the price of the underlying security moves against their investment view.

Price adjustment - Investors should note that any dividend payment on the underlying security may affect its price and the payback of the ELI at expiry due to ex-dividend pricing. Investors should also note that issuers may make adjustments to the ELI due to corporate actions on the underlying security.

Interest rates - While most ELI offer a yield that is potentially higher than the interest on fixed deposits and traditional bonds, the return on investment is limited to the potential yield of the ELI.

Potential yield - Investors should consult their brokers on fees and charges related to the purchase and sale of ELI and payment / delivery at expiry. The potential yields disseminated by HKEx have not taken fees and charges into consideration.

7 Risk Disclosure Statement and Disclaimers for Futures Account

A. Risk of Trading Futures and Options

The risk of loss in trading futures contracts or options is substantial. In some circumstances, the Client may sustain losses in excess of your initial margin funds. Placing contingent orders, such as "stop-loss" or "stop-limit" orders, will not necessarily avoid loss. Market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders. The Client may be called upon at short notice to deposit additional margin funds. If the required funds are not provided within the prescribed time, the Client's position may be liquidated. The Client will remain liable for any resulting deficit in its account. The Client should therefore study and understand futures contracts and options before it trades and carefully considers whether such trading is suitable in the light of its own financial position and investment objectives. If it trades options, it should inform itself of exercise and expiration procedures and its rights and obligations upon exercise or expiry.

Additional Risk Disclosure For Futures And Options Trading Futures

1.1 Effect of "Leverage" or "Gearing"

Transactions in futures carry a high degree of risk. The amount of initial margin is small relative to the value of the futures contract so that transactions are "leveraged" or "geared". A relatively small market movement will have a proportionately larger impact on the funds the Client have deposited or will have to deposit: this may work against as well as for the Client. The Client may sustain a total loss of initial margin funds and any additional funds deposited with the firm to maintain your position. If the market moves against the Client's position or margin levels are increased, the Client may be called upon to pay substantial additional funds on short notice to maintain the Client's position. If the Client fail to comply with a request for additional funds within the time prescribed, the Client's position may be liquidated at a loss and the Client will be liable for any resulting deficit.

1.2 Risk-reducing orders or strategies

The placing of certain orders (e.g. "stop-loss" orders, or "stop-limit" orders) which are intended to limit losses to certain amounts may not be effective because market conditions may make it impossible to execute such orders. Strategies using combinations of positions, such as "spread" and "straddle" positions may be as risky as taking simple "long" or "short" positions.

B. OPTIONS

2.1 Variable degree of risk

Transactions in options carry a high degree of risk. Purchasers and sellers of options should familiarize themselves with the type of option (i.e. put or call) which they contemplate trading and the associated risks. The Client should calculate the extent to which the value of the options must increase for its position to become profitable, taking into account the premium and all transaction costs. The purchaser of options may offset or exercise the options or allow the options to expire. The exercise of an option results either in a cash settlement or in the purchaser acquiring or delivering the underlying interest. If the option is on a futures contract, the purchaser will acquire a futures position with associated liabilities for margin (see the section on Futures above). If the purchased options expire worthless, the Client will suffer a total loss of its investment which will consist of the option premium plus transaction costs. If the Client is contemplating purchasing deep-out-of-the money options, it should be aware that the chance of such options becoming profitable ordinarily is remote. Selling ("writing" or "granting") an option generally entails considerably greater risk than purchasing options. Although the premium received by the seller is fixed, the seller may sustain a loss well in excess of that amount. The seller will be liable for additional margin to maintain the position if the market moves unfavourably. The seller will also be exposed to the risk of the purchaser exercising the option and the seller will be obligated to either settle the option in cash or to acquire or deliver the underlying interest. If the option is on a futures contract, the seller will acquire a position in a futures contract with associated liabilities for margin (see the section on Futures above). If the option is "covered" by the seller holding a corresponding position in the underlying interest or a futures contract or another option, the risk may be reduced. If the option is not covered, the risk of loss can be unlimited. Certain exchanges in some jurisdictions permit deferred payment of the option premium, exposing the purchaser to liability for margin payments not exceeding the amount of the premium. The purchaser is still subject to the risk of losing the premium and transaction costs. When the option is exercised or expires, the purchaser is responsible for any unpaid premium outstanding at that time.

C. ADDITIONAL RISKS COMMON TO FUTURES AND OPTIONS

3.1 Terms and conditions of contracts

The Client should ask the firm with which it deals about the terms and conditions of the specific futures or options which it are trading and associated obligations (e.g. the circumstances under which it may become obliged to make or take delivery of the underlying interest of a futures contract and, in respect of options, expiration dates and restrictions on the time for exercise). Under certain circumstances the specifications of outstanding contracts (including the exercise price of an option) may be modified by the exchange or clearing house to reflect changes in the underlying interest.

3.2 Suspension or restriction of trading and pricing relationships

Market conditions (e.g. illiquidity) and/or the operation of the rules of certain markets (e.g. the suspension of trading in any contract or contract month because of price limits or "circuit breakers") may increase the risk of loss by making it difficult or impossible to effect transactions or liquidate/offset positions. If the Client has sold options, this may increase the risk of loss. Further, normal pricing relationships between the underlying interest and the futures, and the underlying interest and the option may not exist. This can occur when, for example, the futures contract underlying the option is subject to price limits while the option is not. The absence of an underlying reference price may make it difficult to judge "fair" value.

3.3 Deposited cash and property

The Client should familiarize itself with the protections given to money or other property it deposited for domestic and foreign transactions, particularly in the event of a firm insolvency or bankruptcy. The extent to which the Client may recover its money or property may be governed by specific legislation or local rules. In some jurisdictions, property which had been specifically identifiable as its own will be pro-rated in the same manner as cash for purposes of distribution in the event of a shortfall.

3.4 Commission and other charges

Before the Client begins to trade, it should obtain a clear explanation of all commission, fees and other charges for which it will be liable. These charges will affect its net profit (if any) or increase its loss.

3.5 Transactions in other jurisdictions

Transactions on markets in other jurisdictions, including markets formally linked to a domestic market, may expose the Client to additional risk. Such markets may be subject to regulation which may offer different or diminished investor protection. Before the Client trade it should enquire about any rules relevant to its particular transactions. The Client's local regulatory authority will be unable to compel the enforcement of the rules of regulatory authorities or markets in other jurisdictions where your transactions have been effected. The Client should ask the firm with which its deal for details about the types of redress available in both its home jurisdiction and other relevant jurisdictions before you start to trade.

3.6 Currency risks

The profit or loss in transactions in foreign currency-denominated contracts (whether they are traded in the Client's own or another jurisdiction) will be affected by fluctuations in currency rates where there is a need to convert from the currency denomination of the contract to another currency.

3.7 Trading facilities

Electronic trading facilities are supported by computer-based component systems for the order-routing, execution, matching, registration or clearing of trades. As with all facilities and systems, they are vulnerable to temporary disruption or failure. Client's ability to recover certain losses may be subject to limits on liability imposed by the system provider, the market, the clearing house and/or Exchange Participant firms. Such limits may vary: Client should ask the firm with which the Client deals for details in this respect.

3.8 Off-exchange transactions

In some jurisdictions, and only then in restricted circumstances, firms are permitted to effect off exchange transactions. The firm with which the Client deals may be acting as its counterparty to the transaction. It may be difficult or impossible to liquidate an existing position, to assess the value, to determine a fair price or to assess the exposure to risk. For these reasons, these transactions may involve increased risks. Off-exchange transactions may be less regulated or subject to a separate regulatory regime. Before you undertake such transactions, the Client should familiarize yourself with applicable rules and attendant risks.

Shanghai Connect is a securities trading and clearing links programme developed by Hong Kong Exchanges and Clearing Limited (HKEX), Shanghai Stock Exchange (SSE) and China Securities Depository and Clearing Corporation Limited (ChinaClear), aiming to achieve a breakthrough in mutual market access between the Mainland and Hong Kong.

Under Shanghai Connect, The Stock Exchange of Hong Kong Limited (SEHK), a wholly-owned subsidiary of HKEX, and SSE have established mutual order-routing connectivity and related technical infrastructure to enable investors of their respective market to trade designated equity securities listed in the other's market.

Hong Kong Securities Clearing Company Limited (HKSCC), also a wholly-owned subsidiary of HKEX, and ChinaClear are responsible for the clearing, settlement and the provision of depository, nominee and other related services of the trades executed by their respective market participants and/or investors.

Shanghai Connect was launched on 17 November 2014. Information relating to the development of Shanghai Connect can be found on the HKEX website.

Shenzhen Connect was launched on 5 December 2016. Shenzhen Connect by and large applies similar programme principles and design. Information relating to the development of Shenzhen Connect can be found on the HKEX website.

2. Shanghai Connect and Shenzhen Connect open to all investors

Trading of SSE Securities under Shanghai Connect is open to all Hong Kong and overseas investors including institutional and individual investors.

Trading of Shenzhen Stock Exchange (SZSE) Securities, under Shenzhen Connect except ChiNext stocks, is open to all Hong Kong and overseas investors including institutional and individual investors. ChiNext stocks will be limited to institutional professional investors during the initial launch of Shenzhen Connect.

3. Risks Disclosure

1. Not Allow Day Trading of Connect Securities

In the Connect Markets, shares purchased by investors cannot be sold before settlement, which means day trading is not allowed. Hong Kong and overseas investors as well as EPs trading Connect Securities through Shanghai and Shenzhen Connect have to follow the same rule.

2. Pre-trade Checking Arrangement

Pre-trade checking is in place so that the Client have his/her shares transferred to the EP's corresponding CCASS account before the commencement of trading day if he/she intends to sell the shares during a trading day, unless an SPSA arrangement is in place.

3. Not Allow Off-Exchange Trading or No Over-the-Counter (OTC)

Transfers of SSE Securities should only be conducted on SSE. Off-exchange trading is not allowed unless otherwise permitted.

Details of the arrangement for the collection of stamp duty from investors for these non-trade transfers in SSE Securities have been included in the CCASS Operational Procedures published on the HKEX website at <http://www.hkex.com.hk/eng/rulesreg/clearrules/ccassop/documents/sectn12.pdf>. The same arrangement for Shanghai Connect is applied to Shenzhen Connect.

4. Not Allow Naked Short Selling

Naked short selling is prohibited for Northbound Trading. Only eligible Connect Securities (Short Selling Security) can be short sold.

5. Foreign Shareholding Restriction, Including the Forced-Sale Arrangement

Foreign shareholding restriction, including the forced-sale arrangement is in place and the EP should have the right to "force-sell" client's shares upon receiving the forced-sale notification from SEHK.

6. Obey the Mainland Rules & Regulations In Relation To Short-swing Profits and Disclosure Obligations & rules & Regulations

According to the Law of the PRC on Securities, when an investor holds or controls up to 5% of the issued shares of a Mainland listed company, the investor is required to report in writing to the CSRC and the relevant exchange, and inform the listed company within three working days. The investor is not allowed to continue purchasing or selling shares in that listed company during the three days.

For such investor, every time when a change in his shareholding reaches 5%, he is required to make disclosure (in the same manner as mentioned above) within three working days. From the day the disclosure obligation arises to two working days after the disclosure is made, the investor may not buy or sell the shares in the relevant Mainland listed company.

If a change in shareholding of the investor is less than 5% but results in the shares held or controlled by him falling below 5% of the relevant Mainland listed company, the investor is required to disclose the information within three working days. This disclosure obligation is completely responsible for investors and shareholders. Evergrande Securities (Hong Kong) does not have responsibility to in charge and report this disclosure obligation to CSRC and the related exchanges and the listed companies instead of the Client. Investors and shareholders shall often pay attention and obey on the latest rules to be promulgated by Shanghai Exchange and Shenzhen Exchange and CSRC for the disclosure obligation & Interests.

7. Emergency Situation Arrangement

The EP may have the right to cancel the client's orders in case of contingency such as hoisting of Typhoon Signal No 8 in Hong Kong. If SSE or SZSE is suspended due to inclement weather, there will be no Northbound trading in the relevant market and Hong Kong investors and CCEPs will be informed by SEHK.

The EP may not be able to send in the client's order cancellation requests in case of contingency such as when SEHK loses all its communication lines with SSE, etc. and the client should still bear the settlement obligations if the orders are matched and executed;

8. The Client must comply with SSE and SZSE Rules and other applicable laws of Mainland China relating to Northbound trading;

9. The Exchange Participants (EP) v may forward the Client's identity to SEHK which may on-forward to SSE for surveillance and investigation purposes.

If the SSE Rules are breached, or the disclosure and other obligations referred to in the SSE Listing Rules or SSE Rules are breached, SSE has the power to carry out an investigation, and may, through SEHK, require the EP to provide relevant information and materials and to assist in its investigation. This situation is also applied to Shenzhen Stock Exchange.

10. SEHK may upon SSE's request, require the EP to reject orders from the client. This situation is also applied to Shenzhen Stock Exchange.

11. The client needs to accept the risks concerned in Northbound trading, including but not limited to prohibition of trading SSE Securities, being liable or responsible for breaching the SSE Listing Rules, SSE Rules and other applicable laws and regulations. This situation is also applied to Shenzhen Stock Exchange.

12. SSE may request SEHK to require the EP to issue warning statements (verbally or in writing) to the client, and not to extend Northbound trading service to the client. This situation is also applied to Shenzhen Stock Exchange.

13. HKEX, SEHK, SEHK Subsidiary, SSE and SSE Subsidiary and their respective directors, employees and agents shall not be responsible or held liable for any loss or damage directly or indirectly suffered by the EP, the client or any third parties arising from or in connection with Northbound trading or the CSC.

14. Not cover Investor Compensation Fund under SFO

Hong Kong Investors should note that the Investor Compensation Fund established under the Securities and Futures Ordinance ("SFO") does not cover any Northbound activities.

15. Used Up Daily Quota

If the Northbound Daily Quota Balance drops to zero or the Daily Quota is exceeded during the opening call auction session, new buy orders will be rejected.

Once the Northbound Daily Quota Balance drops to zero or the Daily Quota is exceeded during a continuous auction session (or closing call auction session for SZSE), no further buy orders will be accepted for the remainder of the day. SEHK will resume the Northbound buying service on the following trading day.

It should be noted that buy orders already accepted will not be affected by the Daily Quota being used up and will remain on the order book of SSE/SZSE unless otherwise cancelled by relevant EPs.

16. Difference in Trading Day and Time

Shanghai Connect and/ or Shenzhen Connect will only separate on the days when both markets (Shanghai and Hong Kong/Shenzhen and Hong Kong) are open for trading and when banks in both markets are open on the corresponding settlement days. So it is possible that there are occasions when it is a normal trading day for the Mainland market but the Client cannot carry out any A-share trading. The Client should take note of the days

Shanghai Connect/ Shenzhen Connect is open for business and decide according to their own risk tolerance capability whether or not to take on the risk of price fluctuation in A-Shares during the time when Shanghai Connect/ Shenzhen Connect is not trading.

17. Currency Risk

The Client who holds a local currency other than Renmenbi will be exposed to currency risk if he/ she invests in Renmenbi product due to the need for the conversion of the local currency to Renmenbi. During the conversion, currency conversion costs will be incurred. Even if the price of the Renmenbi asset remains the same when the Client purchases it and when the Client redeems/ sells it, it will still incur a loss or affect the profits when the Client converts the redemption/ sale proceeds into local currency if Renmenbi has depreciated.

According to the Client Agreement of "Section 10 – Shanghai Connect and Shenzhen Connect Stock Trading Terms" mentions the several risk factors of Shanghai Connect and Shenzhen Connect, it is written based on Evergrande Securities (Hong Kong)' awareness and preparation on the current application of the provisions of the Mainland stock market rules and regulation.
